Applicants who do not complete all 5 steps by the April 30 deadline can apply as first-come, first-serve applicants by completing the Program's Initial Application, the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), the Statement of Understanding (SOU), and a Service Commitment Agreement until January 14, or until all awards have been exhausted.

Selection and Award Announcements

Each academic year, we allocate our funds first to our renewal participants, second to our priority participants, and lastly to our first-come, first-serve participants. Eligible applicants on the priority list will be accepted based on ranking and funding availability. Priority applicants will be ranked by an established predetermined criteria. Eligible applicants on the first-come, first-serve list will be accepted based on their eligibility date and funding availability. As students go on Leave of Absences, graduate, or do not attend and are withdrawn, we take the funds they would have used and allocate them to the next eligible applicant. Because of all of the factors involved, we cannot guess when applicants will be offered an award. The earliest that we will begin to make award announcements is October. Awardees will be notified of acceptance by e-mail.
